

To Whom It May Concern:

There are many milestones in life. Purchasing a piece of the American dream for the first time is one of them. It is well known that purchasing a home is one of, if not the biggest investment someone can make. My wife and I chose Rachel Valentino because of her well-known reputation helping first-time home buyers.

Rachel's strongest quality is her ability to understand and respond to our needs. She provided honest, unbiased answers to our questions, which allowed us to make well-informed decisions. We never second-guessed the integrity of her prompt responses to our questions.

From our initial meeting to closing Rachel provided us with an unmatched level of customer service. She should be praised for her professionalism, ability to answer any and all real estate questions, and thoroughly understanding and responding to her client's situation.
