

I have now purchased two homes through Rachel Valentino and her team, and highly recommend her services. The great thing about Rachel is that she asks the right questions to really understand what a buyer is looking for. In both cases I ended up purchasing a home in an area of DC that I was not too familiar with and would probably not have considered without Rachel's research and guidance. Also in both cases, I couldn't be happier with the eventual purchase and community I lived in. And both places have turned out to be excellent investments from a financial perspective as well, which is very important to me as a financially-minded person.

I also really appreciated Rachel's dedication to getting the contract written and submitted in a very short timeframe, even when this involved short turnaround times on nights and weekends.

I highly recommend Rachel and her team to help with your real estate needs. I know I plan to use Rachel for every real estate transaction in the future.
