

For us, being a first-time home buyer was an extremely charged experience. The entire process was overwhelming, and it was hard to not let ourselves get emotionally involved. Rachel was able to assist us through this strenuous process. After months of searching, haggling for financing, and pushing to close, we finally have our first home. Rachel was extremely responsive to all our emails and phone calls, emphatic to the emotional whirlwind we were experiencing, and persistent when dealing with unresponsive developers. To all first-time home buyers, Rachel makes a stressful, but extremely rewarding experience, a little bit easier to handle.
